Sub: Webinar on FSSC: 24000: Introduction to FSSC 24000 - Social Management System - a social compliance standard

Dear Madam / Sir,

As you are aware, textile industry is required to demonstrate such compliances especially in global markets. FSSC 24000 helps textile companies prove that their products are made under fair, safe, and ethical working conditions, which is increasingly demanded by international apparel brands and retailers.

Date and Time: 16th March 2026 (Monday), 3:30 pm – 5 pm IST

Registration: Free

Overview of FSSC 24000 - Social Compliance Standard for the Textile Industry

FSSC 24000 Social Management System Certification is a globally recognized social management system certification designed to help organizations demonstrate responsible and ethical practices across their operations and supply chains. It is particularly relevant for industries with complex supply chains such as textiles, apparel, and cotton value chains.

1. What is FSSC 24000?

FSSC 24000 is a certifiable social sustainability management system developed by the Foundation FSSC. It provides a structured framework for organizations to ensure:

- Protection of workers' rights
- Ethical labour practices
- Safe and fair working conditions
- Responsible supply chain management

The standard aligns with international norms such as:

- International Labour Organization (ILO) conventions
- United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights
- International Organization for Standardization management system approach

2. Key Objectives:

The main objectives of FSSC 24000 are to:

- Promote ethical labour practices
- Prevent child labour and forced labour
- Ensure fair wages and working hours
- Promote health, safety, and well-being of workers
- Improve transparency and accountability in supply chains

3. Key Requirements:

Organizations seeking certification must implement systems covering:

- a) Labour Rights
- b) Working Conditions
- c) Fair Treatment
- d) Wages and Benefits
- e) Management System

4. Relevance for the Textile Industry

For the textile and cotton sector, FSSC 24000 is valuable because it:

- Enhances credibility of socially responsible sourcing
- Meets global buyers' compliance requirements
- Improves worker welfare in spinning mills, ginning units, and garment factories
- Supports sustainable textile value chains

Many international brands now require suppliers to follow recognized social compliance standards, making FSSC 24000 an important market access and reputation tool.

5. Benefits for Textile Companies

- Strengthens global buyer confidence
- Demonstrates commitment to ethical manufacturing
- Improves workplace productivity and employee satisfaction
- Reduces reputational and compliance risks
- Supports ESG and sustainability reporting
